

the ordinary." This is a noble goal not just for photographers but for daily living.

when a box of slides was

FROM FACEBOOK

Reader comments on a hot topic | facebook.com/capecodtimes

The Cape Cod Branch of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom will mark International Women's Day Wednesday with a multimedia event in South Yarmouth about environmental action. The theme is "Women Making Waves: Honoring Environmental Action," with five local women receiving special recognition: Lynne Cherry, Ramona Peters, Sue Phelan, Sheila P'ace and Francie Randolph.

■ 3,972 people saw this post/48 likes/9 comments/1 share

Sustainable CAPE – Center for Agricultural Preservation & Education

None of this would be possible without our loyal donors like Seamen's Bank!

Jan Peacor Burling Congratulations!

Lauren McKean You and your peers are to be celebrated, great work!

Sustainable CAPE – Center for Agricultural Preservation & Education And many thanks to all our partners, including the Cape Cod National Seashore - making the world a better place is definitely achieved through collaboration!

Marne Hodgkin Wonderful news! ... Francie is so committed, so energetic—and so deserving of this honor!

Rachel Wynne Well deserved!

Cosmos Catering congrats to all winners- well deserved!!!!

CAPE COD